

NuView Systems Inc. names Ken Bero Chief Operating Officer

Andover, MA – December 19, 2011 - NuView Systems Inc., a global provider of enterprise-wide Human Capital Management solutions, announced today that Ken Bero has joined the company as Chief Operating Officer. As COO, he will be responsible for the day to day operations at NuView. His market experience includes driving and managing rapid growth in both the software and computer hardware industries.

“The addition of Ken Bero is a significant move for the NuView team. His hiring is a reflection of the business’ accomplishments over the last two years and an indication of where our business is headed,” said Shafiq Lokhandwala, CEO of NuView Systems, Inc. “We have been expanding our market presence and capabilities, NuView grew over 20% in 2011 and our Human Capital Management solutions have been selected by a number of large global businesses. We expect this trend to continue and accelerate,” added Lokhandwala. “Ken’s experience in managing rapid growth and operating in global markets significantly enhances our management team and our ability to respond to requirements of our global customers.”

Bero brings a broad base of market experience and demonstrable success identifying core business competencies and opportunities, developing effective strategies and tactics, building strong capable teams and implementing business infrastructure, leading to profitable sale growth in both domestic and international markets. “I am very pleased to be joining the NuView management team,” said Bero. “The Human Capital Management market is growing rapidly and I believe that NuView is well positioned to be a significant player. I am excited and looking forward to making a significant contribution to our growth opportunities.”

Prior to NuView, Bero served as President/CEO of Datawatch Corporation, a publicly traded, international software development and services company. Under his leadership, the company was restructured, maintaining profitability and growing cash during the most recent recession. In previous roles as VP North American Channel Sales for SAP/Business Objects, he revitalized a declining channel business, growing sales from $30M to $75M in four years. As COO/Executive VP Sales and Marketing for Navidec, Inc. a NASDAQ listed software development and services company, Ken expanded and scaled operations from its local Denver market to national presence, opening six new offices and growing revenues from $8M to $32M over three years.
